About the Book (Excerpts & Info)

They took two girls from our group. One of them was my thirteen-year-old daughter, Manda.

When they left one of the rebels said, “I am Captain Blood. I am taking your daughters and you will never see them again!” We all said nothing for fear of being killed, but inside I was praying to God, yet cursing God as well. I said, “For all my years of service this is how you repay me!” I didn’t understand how, of all the thousands of girls, why God would allow my child to be taken. I told Him that if He did not help me get her back I would never believe in His existence again, nor would I talk of Him again. I felt that I was beginning to go crazy.
